Activity: Irrigation Station

- You have two cups, one on the desk and one on the ground.
- Without moving the cups how could you build something that would take water from the top one, to the bottom one?
